

USDA Forest Service Presents....

First Friday All Climate Change Talks (FFACCTs)

Please join USDA Forest Service scientists and partners for an interactive conference call on the first Friday of every month to discuss the latest news and research results on climate change, and climate change impacts on forest sustainability and ecosystem services. Each open invitation session will include:

- ❖ Updates highlighting climate change science, funding, and activities from the agency's Washington Office, Northern and Southern Research Stations, and Eastern and Southern Regions; USDA Climate Hubs; and U.S. Department of the Interior Southeast and Northeast Climate Science Centers
- ❖ A brief climate change focused presentation
- ❖ An open information sharing forum

The USDA Forest Service Eastern Forest Environmental Threat Assessment Center hosts the monthly forums. The Center is supported by all three Forest Service Deputy Chief areas – National Forest System, State and Private Forestry, and Research and Development. The Center actively engages in climate change research and supports the exchange of climate change science through technology transfer and outreach efforts. All are welcome to call in and participate during the discussion.

FFACCTs At-a-Glance....

When

First Friday of each month
11:00 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. (ET)

Where

Your office or home – It's great to be virtual!
Access the forums via Adobe Connect and/or conference call

What

Information sharing and presentations focus on climate change impacts to eastern forest ecosystems. Forest Service Research and Development leaders and partners will share current information related to climate change research activities, funding opportunities, collaborations, technology transfer, and relevant meetings.

Discussions highlight application and delivery of science-based knowledge and practical information to help facilitate climate change adaptation and mitigation.

Who

The Eastern Threat Center hosts the forums, which are open to internal and external participants, including forest landowners and managers, researchers, Federal and State agencies, universities, non-governmental organizations, private companies, Tribes and other interested individuals.

Additional information – For additional information or to be added to the FFACCTs mailing list, please contact Stephanie Worley Firley at sworleyfirley@fs.fed.us or (828) 257-4380. Please also visit the FFACCTs website for additional information and archived presentations.